Following up on yesterday's conference call one thing I should point out is that, because the old general store is within a designated National Historic District, I believe that once state or federal funding has been utilized on the site (which apparently it has) it may have an impact on what you can and cannot do with the building. It has probably already triggered the need for review by Mass Historical if anything is done with regard to the building (like demolishing it). Probably the next step is to meet with Andrew to discuss PVPC's Assessment funds program and include Elizabeth Rairigh (PVPC's Preservation Planner) in the discussion.
